MEDIA RELEASE

New Housing Opportunities

Three cheers for the Liberal Party for supporting public housing. The Housing Trust was a great South Australian institution that changed the face of the State and allowed the post-war influx of immigrants that made us what we are today. It provided leadership to the housing industry and employment for thousands of workers and we continue to be indebted to it.

Housing SA needs to be strengthened to this level so that it has the management resources to manage and build the State's housing according to needs, not party-political advantage.

The United Party supports the Liberal Party's stated aims to provide public housing for 700 more families, and in addition it will go further by encouraging more housing options, ranging from rental assistance and investment options to more tailored opportunities for accommodation combined with integrated community facilities and parks.

We need a fresh wave of innovation and energy in our housing industry. We don't need party-political mismanagement, nor do we need profit-only, beggar thy neighbour financial disasters where in the end the owner and the taxpayer have to carry the can. We need strengthened community input and an innovative industry supported by a strong Housing SA.
